Advising Manual for Faculty

This past fall advisors were surveyed to determine issues that negatively affected working constructively with students. One of the most commonly cited problems was the lack of a single site or document that would provide critical information and links to appropriate services. As a result, an Advising Manual for Faculty was prepared to assist advisors. You can download the PDF here

The PDF file has a table of contents that hyperlinks to relevant parts of the document. In addition, there are links in the manual to other resources for advisors and students. Please note that many of these links require you to be logged into My Charger to connect. This version of the manual is just for current advising. It will be updated for future semesters, if any links or policies change.

Report It

Faculty are encouraged to report crimes, suspicious student/community behavior and incidents of bias through the University's new Report It! Don't Ignore It! resource. Report It! is the University's primary resource for community members who wish to report a crime or an incident of concern.
